THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Universal Training

Washington, Feb. 23. IT IS very unfortunate that the really vital questions of universal military service and the extension of the draft should come up in an election year. That makes it impossible for them to be considered on their merits. That makes the whole business a political game.

THAT is the reason for the pessimism concerning their outlook. All the members of the House and one third of the Senate come up for re-nomination and election this fall. The timid among them are extremely anxious to avoid any vote that possibly can alienate voters in their respective districts and states. It is true that the Gallup poll shows a majority in favor of universal training. It is true, too, that besides the chiefs of staff and the Secretaries of War and Navy, the President does not run this year and members of Congress do. Most of these are strongly opposed to creating even the smallest resentful minority where none now exists.

WERE it not for this condition, there would be no question of either the draft being extended or the universal training program being put through. For the arguments—very strong, indeed. In response to the tremendous demand for the return of the soldiers we have been compelled to demobilize at dangerous speed. If in May the draft is not extended, we will have to depend wholly upon voluntary enlistment to keep our armed forces from almost complete ineffectuality. In that event, it is agreed that a universal training program is the least we can do if we are not to sink back into a state of precarious unpreparedness in which, unable to sustain our position abroad, we will become again the soft, fat boy whom it would take a couple of years to get in shape to defend himself and whose words will carry no weight because he hasn't anything with which to back them up.

AS things are today it is generally agreed that, despite presidential insistence, there is little chance of Congress extending the draft and also passing a universal training bill. If it does the first, the second will not be killed but it will be postponed. On the other hand, if Congress refuses to extend the draft, the prospects for the training program undoubtedly will be enhanced. At this time the best judgment is that the draft will not be extended and that the big fight will come on the training program, hearings on which are now in progress. If, through added inducements, voluntary enlistments can be stimulated to the point of providing an army sufficiently strong to fulfill our commitments, that, of course, is to be preferred. Notwithstanding the strong sentiment in its favor, there are two reasons the

New Hope WAVE Is Injured in Accident

In an accident at Norristown, 80-year-old Frank X. Stone, his daughter, his granddaughter and his great-grandson suffered cuts when their automobile collided with one operated by an allegedly drunken driver.

The death of Mrs. Benson and Miss Caszkiewicz occurred Thursday as the result of a crash on Route 29-30, two miles north of Flemington, N. J., at the height of Tuesday's snowstorm.

Injured in the accident were Major Milton L. Benson, 36, the dead woman's husband, and Radio Specialist Joan Mortimer, 22, of New Hope, a former Hollywood starlet who is now a WAVE stationer in Philadelphia.

Major Benson, a broker who recently was mustered out of the Army Air Forces, was driving northward with his wife and Miss Mortimer as passengers when their car collided with one driven by Miss Caszkiewicz, a case worker for the New Jersey Board of Children's Guardians.

HERE AND THERE IN BUCKS COUNTY TOWNS

Activities of Interest To All in The Various Communities

GLEANED BY SCRIBES

Addressing a fairly well attended meeting of Newtown New Century Club on the subject, "The Problems of the Adult and their Adjustment," Wednesday afternoon, Dr. Charlotte Graves, of the Woods School staff, Langhorne, declared that the individual must have a feeling of security in his community, and in addition, should have a feeling of good relationship with the people around him.

Introduced by Mrs. Raymond Taylor, Dr. Graves said the adult individual should know why he does things, the way they are done.

It is important, added Dr. Graves, that the individual find a place for himself in the community and know that he is needed in the community.

A business session was conducted by the president, Mrs. Russell Janney.

Teachers and patrons of the Mill Creek and Neshaminy schools were the guests at the meeting of the Warrington Parent-Teacher Association in the school house, Warrington, Wednesday evening, when school grading was discussed.

The meeting, which was in charge of the president, Henry Swartz, Jr., was featured by a program by the pupils, the showing of a motion picture and a discussion relative to the grading and consolidation of the schools of the township.

Directed by the music teacher, Miss Doris Kratz, the girls' chorus of the Warrington school rendered several selections, and two violin solos were played by Anne Klein, who was accompanied at the piano by her sister, Joan.

With five charter members in attendance, 42 persons attended the 32nd anniversary meeting of Sciota Council, No. 223, Degree of Pocahontas, at Doylestown, on Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Margaret Howe was the chairwoman and 42 persons enjoyed a turkey dinner in the banquet room of Monument Restaurant.

A SUMMARY OF THE NEWS

India continued to seethe as mutiny and rioting paralyzed two of her greatest cities, Bombay and Karachi. In Calcutta, American military traffic was ordered off the streets in anticipation of possible clashes. Government troops and warships rushed to critical areas. Political leaders, both British and Indian, feared the situation was getting out of control and would jeopardize forthcoming negotiations. In London, Parliament backed Prime Minister Attlee's insistence that "only unconditional surrender" would be accepted from naval mutineers.

In Cairo, Premier Sidsky's ban on further demonstrations was rigidly observed.

From Indonesian sources in Batavia, capital of Java, came reports that natives on the island of Celebes had revolted against Netherland rule in six localities.

In Chungking, more than 10,000 students staged an all-day anti-Soviet and anti-Communist demonstration. The quarters of the Com-

COSTS OF PRICE CONTROL

The absurd results which follow when government steps into the field of economics and tries to replace the laws of supply and demand with a program of price controls is illustrated in a news dispatch from Havana.

Every housewife is familiar with the fact that there was a recent boost in the price of sugar. The reasons why OPA made this particular exception to its "hold the line" program are not so well known. And the effects are just beginning to reach the surface.

OPA and other price agencies in Washington have been jockeying with sugar for several years. The price has crawled up and the supply fallen off.

Various direct and indirect subsidies have added to the true price through the expensive, roundabout process of charging part of it to the taxpayers.

Therefore on the basis either of "holding the line" on sugar prices, or of keeping a sufficient supply available, the OPA has been a failure.

The key to the failure, as has been explained in detail to Congress, is to be found in Puerto Rico. This island normally supplies ten per cent of the American sugar. The breakdown in our imports from that source is the important loss which keeps our total stock far below needs.

What happened to it? The story is simple enough. Under the New Deal touch, several additions to the labor cost of producing sugar there were made without any increase in price being granted to cover them.

A strike tangle resulted in which virtually an entire season's crop of sugar cane rotted in the field.

The argument involved was one which could come up only in an agency like OPA where the emphasis was not on keeping production moving, but in making a case for itself on price-control—regardless of scarcities.

Puerto Rico was held to a price-level which was

PLEADS GUILTY TO A CHARGE OF ASSAULT

Jack W. Scoby, 19, of N. J., Admits Hitting State Park Officer

SENTENCE SUSPENDED

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 23.—Romance in a State wildflower preserve at Bowman's Hill, Washington Crossing Park, Bucks Co., in which two prominent Hamilton Township, N. J., residents were the main factors—together with a police officer—was pictured this week in Bucks County criminal court before Judge Itham H. Keller.

The defendant was Jack W. Scoby, 19, who recently returned to his father's farm in Hamilton Township, after serving in the U. S. Air Corps.

While home on a furlough June 30th, Scoby and his boyhood sweetheart, pretty Doris Hammond, 16-year-old Hamilton Township high school senior, drove to Washington Crossing for a picnic lunch that Miss Hammond had prepared.

It was testified that the two found a pretty spot near a flower trail, spread a blanket and enjoyed their luncheon together when they were questioned by Park Policeman William Pittman, who told them that they had been picnicking in the wild flower preserve, and that was against the law.

Both Scoby and Miss Hammond admitted that the officer was correct when he testified that the two had kissed each other, but that there was absolutely no misconduct.

Scoby testified that the officer told them that he did not want to get them into trouble and that he might be able to get them out of it after he had talked to the "park commissioner", and that he told them to go back home to Hamilton Square and return the next day and that at that time he (the officer) would inform them what could be done. Scoby also testified that Officer Pittman told him that if he could only "spare" him his girl for half an hour, that probably some agreement could be arranged.

The defendant and Miss Hammond did return the following day. It was testified and it was during an argument over settling the offense in some manner that Officer Pittman—according to Scoby—pulled out his gun and pointed it at him.

"It was then that I took the gun away from him, hit the officer in the face and we started for our car and drove back home," Scoby testified.

Scoby this week pleaded guilty to a charge of assault and battery. A charge of larceny of a gun was dropped by the Commonwealth.

The affair was reported finally to the Washington Crossing park authorities and later to the state police who sent out a teletype to the New Jersey section. Officer Walter Metzger, of Hamilton Township, arrested Scoby later and he was brought to Pennsylvania after he had been honorably discharged from the army, and after army au-

LATEST NEWS BULLETINS

Goering Described as "Protector of Womanhood"

Suennberg—Ex-Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering was pictured by his counsel today as a protector of womanhood, and innocent in regard to Nazi concentration camp horrors, and as a constant seeker of peace.

That favorable view of Hitler's one-time confidant was presented before the Allied War Crimes Tribunal in an attempt to call defense witnesses in Goering's behalf and to provide "crucially and historically important evidence about Goering's attitude in 1939."

The witnesses include Swedish engineer Birges Dahlerius, field Marshal Albert von Kesselring, and fourteen other men the defense said knew Goering in his "true" light.

British Prosecutor Sir Maxwell Fyfe objected to calling Dahlerius on the grounds that the latter's book "The Last Attempt" told all there was to know about Goering's alleged attempts to avoid war.

Fyfe did not object to having the other witnesses appear.

STARVING EUROPE MUST BE FED IS THEME OF ADDRESS

Mrs. Hilda E. Koch Gives First-Hand Account of What Hunger Pangs Do

TRAVEL CLUB SPEAKER

"Let Us Fight Just As Hard For The Peace As We Did To Win War"

"Let's feed Europe!" "Let us fight just as hard for the peace and do it just as conscientiously as we fought to win the war."

These were among the earnest pleas of Mrs. Hilda E. Koch, Jenkintown, yesterday afternoon as she in addressing members of the Travel Club expressed the wish for a "thousand tongues" so that she could tell more and more people of the need of a people starved not only for food but starved for hope and love.

Mrs. Koch, procured through the American Friends Service Committee, proved well qualified to give first-hand information on conditions in Europe following a war, for she was one of the child "casualties" of the first war who suffered from pangs of hunger and near-starvation. Chosen as one of those in her school in Germany who were most in need of the food which the Quakers provided, she expressed her condition at that time, she was most lucky for that opportunity and the belief that while unlucky in the thought that someone across the ocean cared enough to send food, opened her eyes to many things, and gave her strong desire to come to America.

Introduced by Mrs. Ernest Lawrence, Jr., chairman of the International Relations committee, Mrs. Koch reiterated the preciousness of every moment, and the need to get plenty of food to Europe quickly. She pleaded not only for children of the allied nations, but for those of Germany as well. "No child, even a Nazi child, is to be blame for any condition in Europe."

Throughout her account of conditions in Europe during World War I and immediately following, and also the years since then, there came to the club women bits of information on Mrs. Koch's experiences. She told of falling prey to tuberculosis, with both lungs being affected, due to lack of proper food and a good foundation. Telling of how she, her sister and other children would dream of food after a day with practically nothing to eat; how often there was nothing but turnips, and how at other periods they would gladly have eaten turnips. She mentioned how during the winter of 1917-18 a soup flour was provided. "It was the most awful-smelling and awful tasting stuff I ever swallowed. My sister and I would refuse to eat it for breakfast, could not bring ourselves to take it at noon, but by night the pangs of hunger would drive us to accept, and we would actually hold our noses while we ate it." Then turning thoughts to another angle she queried "How can we expect people who are hungry to have a vision of peace? We must feed them first for there are no pangs like hunger, not even those of childbirth—and I have experienced both."

Mrs. Koch mentioned the one bright spot in her childhood was when she was one of the children most in need selected to be fed by the "Quakers from America." "They couldn't feed all the children, so with what food they had it was decided to take the worst cases. . . . When we sat down to that first meal of 'chocolate soup' we couldn't eat at once, the tears ran into the bowls. We weren't only glad for the food, but it did something to us to learn that someone cared. We as children couldn't imagine who would send good food to us. Then one day a little girl next to me said 'I know who these Quakers are: They are people who have lots of food, so much that they can eat all day long,' and we sat in wonderment at such a thing being possible. When I reached home I told my mother that I had one wish—that when I grew up I wished to go to America and become a Quaker, and that then I would send lots of food to the children in Europe. My wish came true, but I am sorry that such conditions have to exist that make the part true that so many millions of children are starving. But I am trying to keep my childhood pledge and let the people know the need."

It was the opinion of the speaker that if she had not been able to get her boy, now 13, out of Germany when she did, he today would be experiencing the same things she had. "It is pitiful for the parents to have to hear the pleas of their children for food and not be

INSTRUMENTS OF PEACE

Before the war Japan bought scrap metal from the United States and wherever else she could find it to build up her war machine.

During the war the Japanese war lords needed metal so badly they even confiscated hundreds of bells from Buddhist temples, melted them down and used the metal in the manufacture of weapons.

Now that the war is over, the Japanese have something called the Committee for the Disposal of Destroyed War Weapons. The duty of the committee is to collect and process all available metal from rifles, tanks, cannon and submarines, and channel it into reconversion uses.

This is really turning from war to peace. It is also, in the interest of preventing future aggression, the best possible application to Japan of the Biblical injunction: "They shall beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning-hooks."

NOT JUST LAZINESS

It seems to many persons that Dr. David Inglis has miscalculated the state of mind of his countrymen when he suggests that an atom bomb be dropped on New York to blow the city sky-high to shake the American people from their "lethargy of thought." Many persons are quite ready to agree that the destruction of the world's largest city might be a worthwhile sacrifice if it could be relied upon to drive mankind to reach an agreement that would end the threat of war and atomic bombardment.

But it is to be doubted whether it is really "lethargy of thought" that is keeping people from reaching these goals. Americans are not deaf and blind to the prospective horrors of atomic war. The prospect that faces all mankind if this new power is not brought under control has been brought home to Americans. But as to being too lazy to do anything about it, most persons just don't know which way to turn and it is doubtful that the destruction of New York would help them out of that difficulty.

The common man, to use an overworked term, has no doubts about what he wants. The trouble is that the statesmen, the scientists, the diplomats—all the leaders on whom he relies—seem to be as hopelessly at sea as he is. They have few solutions to suggest and they are unable to agree among themselves on any one of these.

It is undoubtedly true that if any American city, large or small, were actually to be blown to dust as Hiroshima was, there would be a tremendous public clamor for action. The White House could be expected to issue proclamations, Congress to legislate. But there would still be the Russians, the British, the French, the Chinese and all the other nations to deal with.

That is unless Dr. Inglis is prepared to wipe out at the same time the largest city in every nation in the world. That might accomplish something, but it would bear little resemblance to achievements of the dove of peace.

COSTS OF PRICE CONTROL

designed, not for costs there, but in Cuba, where conditions are entirely different.

For a period of eighteen months, authority easily available to OPA and its affiliated agencies could have made a differential taking care of the Puerto Rican emergency—and keeping the American sugar bowl full.

At the critical period, OPA refused to budge. After the shortage resulted—too late to prevent it—there was a hurried "cover up" boost in price. Whether it is in time to get this year's crop of Puerto Rico sugar on the market remains to be seen. The price concession is less than the island's producers insisted was necessary to cover the higher costs.

This raise was made a general increase, applicable both to Puerto Rico which needed it and Cuba which didn't.

Now comes the payoff. The Cuban government itself, seeing that the American price "experts" have set a figure unnecessarily high for Cuban production costs, has cut itself in on the profits.

Out of the excess which the raised price to American consumers will produce, the Cuban government will seize the sum of $20,000,000.

Of course there is a thin disguise to prevent its being said that this is a direct Cuban tax on American users of sugar. The Cuban government, instead of taking part of the excess for all markets, will take all of the excess from one—that part which is sold outside of the United States. The government allocates the exporting of sugar, producers have no choice whether they are called on to ship to the United States or elsewhere.

It is quite obvious that the effect of American price control in this nation is to provide a handsome subsidy for the Cuban government.

In all the fanfare of publicity from Chester Bowles' office, telling how he plans to arrange for Americans to get higher wages and buy at lower prices, matters such as the one mentioned above get little attention.

True, in recent statements Bowles has been forced to admit that the OPA program is not really a price control program at all, but a subsidy program. But there has been no accurate accounting thus far on where the real cost of commodities now stands when the direct and indirect subsidies are included.

Part of any subsidy program is wasted. Conspicuous in the case of sugar is the fact that American citizens get no benefit at all from the indirect subsidy of $20,000,000 to the Cuban government which the new and higher sugar price makes possible.

A subsidy program is costly to operate. Thousands of public jobs are necessary to run it—which is one of its attractions, of course, for a national administration that is the most conspicuously patronage-hungry of any yet to rule in Washington.

And reliance on subsidy programs leads towards both national bankruptcy and dictatorship by insidiously wrecking the operations of a strong economy.

From one point of view, of course, the $20,000,000 "gift" to the Cuban government may be considered a payoff for tolerating American interference with free markets. Cuba could, if permitted, undersell nearly any other source of cane sugar on the American market, and could therefore greatly increase its sales—again, if permitted.

All in all, the spoonful of sugar you put in your coffee has quite a story to tell!

Pleads Guilty To A Charge of Assault

authorities in Trenton had given him a clean bill of health after investigating the Washington Crossing park episode.

Called in rebuttal by the Commonwealth, Officer Pitman denied that Scoby's story and that of his sweetheart were true, and added: "If you ever see the action of the young people, the soldiers, sailors and their girls in the park, you would not blame us for breaking up such infractions of the rules as these." The officer admitted, however, that he saw nothing wrong in this instance except the two were eating in the flower preserve.

The Great Game of Politics

advocates of universal training have been discouraged about its chance.

ONE is the somewhat general hysteria about "getting the boys home," plus the popular feeling against a peacetime draft. The other is the continued tendency to confuse universal military training with universal military service. The combination has created a rather sticky atmosphere about the whole subject in Congress. But those in best position to judge say there is no cause for real pessimism. The chief need, they say, is education. First, it is essential to drive home to the public the urgent necessity for the training program, and the appalling situation in which the country will be if it is refused. Second, it is essential to make it crystal clear that military training is not conscription; that these boys will be trained by the Army but will not be in the army and cannot be put in the army except by special act of Congress.

Character witnesses called in behalf of Scoby

Character witnesses called in behalf of Scoby included Walter Metzger, police officer of Hamilton township who arrested Scoby and Mrs. Marion Walker, Allentown, N. J., an aunt. The defendant was represented by State Senator Howard I. James, of Bristol.

"Unlike your counsel," Judge Keller commented in pronouncing sentence, "I believe the testimony of the park officer in this case. The court looks upon this as a mistake rather than a serious offense, but the next time anything like that happens you, Scoby, should use your head. You have a fine young woman and this should be a lesson to you."

Judge Keller suspended sentence on condition that Scoby pay a fine of $100 and costs and placed him on parole for one year.

CROWS GET TIGHT GRIP ON LEAD; SMASH RECORD

Again Lead The High Division of Veterans' League

RANGERS A R E BACK

Night Raiders Battle It Out With The Ruptured Ducks

Crows have firmer grasp on first place as they came back and smashed a new high team single 938 to again rule the high game division. The Tappers knocked the Crows out record off last week so the Crows bounced right back and moved into the lead again.

The Rangers bounced back in the win column in the second but the Crows pulled another close one out of the fire in the last and deciding game. The Rangers went down to defeat but honorably — having three games all over 800 while the Crows were just a mite stronger with a 2620 series. Art Kramers set the pace for the Crows with his 200, 222, 189—617 series which was also high for the night. Jack Fraser was high for the Rangers with 589.

The Night Raiders and the Ruptured Ducks battled it out and the Raiders bested them 2-1 to keep fourth position in the league. They are only three games from the top, but will have to battle the Rangers next week, and have a possible chance of landing in second place. Pete Monti had a 570 series to lead the Raiders to victory, while Ed Hunter consistently hits his 500 series to lead the Ducks. Ed's 559 was high again last night for the Ducks and he's sporting a nifty 178 average now.

The Rambling Wrecks made wrecks out of Taps Tappers and took them for two. The Tappers winning only the first game and that by the slim margin of three runs—against four men and a low score. The Wrecks, with five men on their roster won the second and third games, easily. Felix Tomlinson steered the Wrecks with his 532 series while Bob Ward was high for the Tappers with 455.

Next weeks schedule brings the league leading Crows against Taps Tappers for the main event of the evening and a possible shakeup of the standings. This match should provide plenty of excitement and keen competition. These two teams are blood rivals—come on out and see the explosion.

All they had was Hitler and his plan, and they smashed that. If that cup of hot chocolate soup planted in my mind a love for humanity think what we can do if we do our duty now. If we think we can do good today and neglect it in the future it will not work. If we hope to build a better world we have to face one thing clearly today—that each one of us is responsible for what happens. I have a power and a duty to change chance of running away. There must come to the realization of that power within us. One reason we who are Christians and believe in the Brotherhood of man haven't accomplished more is because we are inactive—each waiting for others to do it. It is long enough we have been asleep. denied all charges made against him and renewed his allegation that former American officials in Buenos Aires had made the American Embassy a center of espionage. The accusation was accompanied by documentary evidence.

Chairman Vinson of the House Naval Affairs Committee will ask Congress to establish a special occupation force of well-paid volunteers to replace drafted troops. He estimated that a force of 600,000 officers and men would be needed for an indefinite period to police Germany, Austria, Japan and Korea.

As the General Motors strike continued through its ninety-fourth day, Federal Mediator Dewey said a tentative agreement had been reached by the negotiators on a new maintenance-of-membership clause, a major obstacle to a settlement. However, he reported little headway over the issues of wages and seniority privileges.

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (INS)—Feed supplies on Indiana farms again are abundant. Purdue University and federal statisticians released a report showing that, as of Jan. 1, Hoosier farmers had 168 million bushels of corn on hand, largest reserve on record. Other feed supplies contributing to the abundant picture were given as: Oats, 35 million bushels; and wheat as 5,384,000 bushels.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor Courier:

Since you have started a very much needed drive on dirty streets, etc., don't you think these people (especially the store keepers) who insist on burning paper and trash out on the street should be stopped? The ashes remain there until a heap has been created, then probably it will be gathered for the collector.

A Reader.
